Powerful poetry and emotive illustrations are paired to create a nonfiction story that celebrates African American heritage.

As slaves relentlessly toiled in an unjust system in 19th-century Louisiana, they all counted down the days until Sunday, when at least for half a day they were briefly able to congregate in Congo Square in New Orleans. This story chronicles slaves' duties each day, and builds to the freedom of Sundays and the special experience of an afternoon spent in Congo Square.

This book has a forward from Freddi Williams Evans, a historian and Congo Square expert, as well as a glossary of terms with pronunciations and definitions.

The habits of rabbits are many, not few, with plenty of things that they love to do!

This sweet, lyrical story by Douglas Florian follows a family of rabbits as they have fun doing everyday things like digging holes, building snow rabbits, thumping their feet, and more. As the day comes to an end, readers will learn that the rabbits' favorite thing to do is "say goodnight with a hug and kiss."

Josette Bobette is searching for an artist to paint the perfect portrait of her rabbit, Pepette!

After seeing all the fine portraits of her family in her house in Paris, Josette decides that her stuffed-animal rabbit Pepette needs a portrait of her own. The two of them set off for Montmartre, the art center of 1920s Paris, to seek out an artist to paint Pepette's portrait. They encounter Pablo Picasso, Salvador Dalí, Marc Chagall, and Henri Matisse, who all try their hand at capturing the rabbit. None of the artists are able to capture the true essence of Pepette. And then it comes to her . . . she, Josette, is the perfect person to do this.

One little girl and her father are on their way to school as the whole city wakes up around them.

The city is still fast asleep when a young girl and her father leave the house. But slowly, little by little, light starts to creep up over the buildings, and the city starts to wake up. As they walk through the drowsy streets, a woman begins her morning jog, street sweepers clean up the roads, stores begin to open, and food deliveries are made to stores and restaurants. Join these two on their morning walk to school through the city in this beautifully illustrated picture book.

No messes. No colors. No surprises allowed. EVER.

Welcome to the Black and White Factory! A penguin, zebra, and panda take you on a top-secret tour to see some special products that are made here, like salt and pepper shakers and dice. There are a few rules, though: No messes. No colors. No surprises allowed. EVER. When the tour gets to the bar code room, color has seeped in! It's up to the reader to try and rub it off, but nothing works! The mess becomes out of control and the animals love it! But of course, they'll have to change the rules now: Messes, Colors, Surprises allowed! For EVER!

A thoughtful anti-bullying book from the talented author/illustrator Henry Cole!

Eddie the chicken is the meanest kid in class. He may be the smallest, but he is the biggest bully. He calls people names, hides people's homework, and trips people. No one is safe from his bullying! A new student, Carla the pig, comes to class one day, and everyone is prepared for the worst. But does she have a way to stop Eddie's bullying? She compliments his clothes, invites him to lunch, and is extremely nice to him. Her kindness makes Eddie feel great until he starts to think about the way he's treated his other classmates, and then he feels bad. He realizes it feels good to be liked, so he tries to help her make friends and be a good friend to everyone.

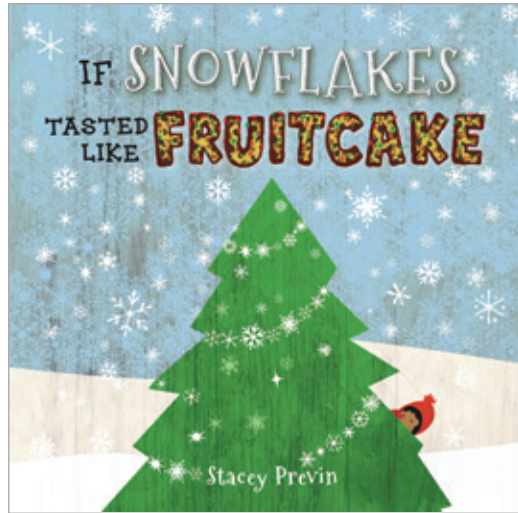

HENRY COLE was born on a dairy farm near Purcellville, Virginia, and was an adored elementary-school science teacher for sixteen years. He has since illustrated over 120 picture books. Find out more about him at henrycole.net.

A rhyming winter-themed book full of delicious snowflakes!

What if snowflakes tasted like oatmeal, honey, cocoa, gingerbread, or fruitcake? This book is filled with imaginative scenes of what it would be like if snowflakes tasted differently: If they tasted like honey, we wouldn't need bees; if they tasted like plump figs, we would shake them off the trees; if they tasted like chestnuts, we would roast them by the fire; if they tasted like soup, we would slurp them for fun; and more! But since they taste like winter, we catch them on our tongues!

An adaptation of the classic Christmas tale for young children, complete with beautiful illustrations!

On Christmas Eve, Clara and Fritz are waiting patiently for their godfather, Drosselmeyer, to bring them presents. He brings many wonderful toys, but Clara is taken by a simple nutcracker. Her brother promptly steals and breaks it, but Drosselmeyer repairs it for her. After everyone goes to sleep, Clara says goodnight to the Christmas tree and nutcracker, and something strange happens. The entire room seems to grow around her, and huge, squeaking mice invade it. . . . But her nutcracker springs to life to defend her! They defeat the Mouse King, and the nutcracker turns into a human. Then they meet the Sugarplum Fairy and are entertained by dancers from all around the world before Clara wakes up. Was it all a dream?

E.T.A. HOFFMANN (1776-1822) was a German author, composer, and caricaturist best known for writing The Nutcracker and the Mouse King, which inspired many other book, movie, and ballet adaptations.

This beautiful and inspiring picture book about a little-known 20th-century African-American fashion designer shines a light on how the great-granddaughter of a slave and a plantation owner became a sensational designer for society's most well-known women.

As soon as Ann Cole Lowe could walk, her momma and grandma taught her to sew. When her mom passed away, it wasn't easy to continue to sew, attend design school, and learn alone, segregated from the rest of the class. But the work she did, including Jackie Kennedy's wedding dress, sent her spirit soaring. This attractive picture book focuses on the career of a little-known visionary. Ann Cole Lowe persevered in times of hardship and continued to do what she was passionate about: making elegant gowns for the women who loved to wear them. She was eventually recognized and is known now for her hard work and dedication.

In this picture book illustrated by Caldecott Medalist David Diaz, curious baby creatures and their mamas discover the world around them.

When a child notices a grasshopper, he exclaims, “Mama, look!” This sets off a series of curious baby creatures noticing other curious baby creatures and pointing them out to their mothers. The human child spots the grasshopper, the grasshopper spots an ant, the ant spots a butterfly, and so on. Told through a combination of the “Mama, look!” refrain and the identifying noun, this simple story is perfect for introducing children to the world around them.

Step right up and read about the creation of cotton candy at the St. Louis, Missouri, World's Fair in 1904!

The 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, Missouri was an exhibition like none other. It had huge buildings for displaying all sorts of inventions and machines, exhibits from around the world, and vendors selling brand-new foods, including something called Fairy Floss, which we now call cotton candy. In this unique historical-fiction picture book, little Lillie and her Aunt Mae are told all about Fairy Floss by John Wharton, one of the inventors. Lillie can't wait to go to the fair and see how it's made. While there, she even makes a batch for herself!

Find out why a cat is the purrfect pet in this fantastically funny picture book!

In A Cat Is Better, a cat who was just adopted has a hard time getting the attention of his new owner, because an excited and energetic dog was adopted at the same time—and he's an attention hog! So the cat describes to his new owner why cats are better than dogs, even though he may be mistaken in some of his stereotypes. Eventually the cat and dog become friends and share the attention of their new owner.

Wally is a young boa constrictor who loves hugs, but sometimes he squeezes too tight!

Wally's parents give him hugs to begin and end the day, and he hugs them back just as tightly. But Wally's classmates don't seem to love hugs as much as Wally does, because they're afraid he might squeeze them too tight. Once Wally understands why no one wants to hug him, he promises not to squeeze too hard. They all decide to let Wally hug them, but Wally is so happy he can't contain himself: He gets carried away and gives everyone a big . . . kiss!

In this imaginative book, a tiny race car lines up next to all the big race cars revving their engines. . . .
Will it be able to take the Winner's Cup?

Cars line up for the big race . . . and they're off! Down mountains and by waterfalls, through tunnels and past landslides, the cars race! Then someone calls out, and the reader realizes that the "racetrack" is made up of objects in a child's backyard. And the child orchestrating the race, Max, takes a break from racing his toy cars so he can eat a snack and "fuel up" for the next race.

1: WHEN DRAGONS BULLED

On the other side of Bright Mountain, through the Fog of Sorrows and past the wasteland of Destruction, was a place where only knights in shining armor dared to go when they wanted to impress a princess.

At the bottom of the other side of the mountain was the Dragon's Field. Dozens of dragons laid there in dozens of these houses.

Is the Loch Ness Monster of Scotland real? In The Loch Ness Monster, readers can pore over all the “proof” that believers have of the lake monster, plus learn about other mythical creatures from Scotland. In Bigfoot, kids can read about the sightings and “proof” that Bigfoot exists, plus learn about other mythical creatures, such as the Yeti. Complete with engaging anecdotes, interesting sidebars, and fantastic illustrations, these books are sure to be “true” hits!

ERIN PEABODY worked as a park ranger at the National Mall in Washington, D.C., the Dry Tortugas in the Gulf of Mexico, and Yellowstone, before becoming an author. Erin lives with her husband, daughter, and yellow lab, Luna, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

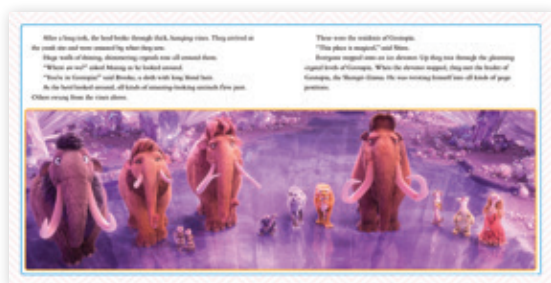

VICTOR RIVAS was born and raised in Vigo, Spain, and now lives outside of Barcelona. He has been a freelance illustrator for thirty years, illustrating children’s and teen books, as well as magazines, posters, covers, advertising, concept art for multimedia games and animation, and comics.
